

EDITORIAL

This edition of the Goiano Bulletin of Geography is an unequivocal demonstration of the international capillarity of our journal. This international capillarity translates itself as in the articles available in English as on the themes approached by authors of different institutions. The theoretical contributions about the history of geography, the concept of territory and the question of difference, get together to emergent themes as the attacks in Paris or even the economic dynamics in binational border areas.

We thank the authors who trusted their work to our journal and to our Editorial Board which is always available for evaluations.

Enjoy the reading!
